Bowstones ► Lantern Wood ► Lyme Park

Introduction

One of a series of circular walks from the Nelson Pit Visitor Centre. The route climbs over 1300 feet from Nelson Pit to Bowstones, and is partly strenuous. However, the views from the highest points on a good day are spectacular. This walk should be avoided on a misty day.

Route

From Nelson Pit Visitor Centre, exit the car park, turn left along the road to join the Macclesfield Canal at Mount Vernon Wharf, just before the bridge.

i The Macclesfield canal, it's nickname is the 'Macc', was surveyed by Thomas Telford, it cost £320,000 to build and opened on 19 November 1831. Tolls at one and two old pence were charged by the ton per mile. Coal and stone were the cheapest and finished goods the most expensive. The toll collectors were agents employed by the canal company, relatively well paid and usually armed.

The canal was used commercially until the 1950's. Self-employed barges, called Number One's, charged for their services by the ton per mile and were the last vestige of the commercial traffic. Efforts by the British Waterways Board in the late 50's to stem the decline by building a series of narrow boats for commercial use were a failure.

- 1 Turn right under bridge 15 and continue along the canal until the next bridge, number 16, (Hagg Bridge). Turn right, then immediately left over the bridge. At the bottom of the steps turn slightly right across the field and through a metal kissing gate.

- 2 Turn left following the sight of the house on the horizon. Through another kissing gate at the top left side of the field. Follow the track round the edge of the field, turn left through a metal kissing gate. Continue along the track between the hedge and fence; turn right through a wooden gate.
- 3 Follow the tarmac road uphill, turn right in front of the farmhouse, (Green Farm), still following the road. Where the road forks, turn sharp left and through the waymarked gate, adjacent to the stone farm barns. Pass in front of the large metal barn and turn right.
- 4 Walk uphill, through a wooden gate and then left over a tall ladder stile. You are now in Lyme Park. Walk uphill, at an angle of about 45 degrees, at the ridge the track runs parallel to a drystone wall. Continue ahead and walk downhill towards the car park.
- 5 Reaching the T-junction at a cattle grid, with the house ahead, turn right and after a few yards walk through the high gate. You are now on the Gritstone Trail.

i The Gritstone Trail is 18½ miles long and runs from village of Disley to the Staffordshire border over rugged upland country, pasture land and wooded river valleys. The whole area covered by the Trail used to be known as 'The Lyme', meaning 'border country'. The Gritstone Trail, including the former Mow Cop Trail, has been extended to make it more accessible by public transport. The route is split into three sections, which can each be walked in a day.

- 6 Up the path adjacent to the drystone wall, through a high gate, and follow the wide track ahead through the trees. This is Knightslow Wood. Through another high gate, walk uphill ahead.

The Bowstones

The Bowstones are thought to be remains of Anglo Saxon crosses that marked the edge of an ancient kingdom as well as objects of devotion.

- 10 At the T-junction turn left, walk in front of Lyme Hall, down the steps, across the car park and join the road walking uphill. Where it forks take the right track and continue uphill adjacent to the drystone wall.

- 7 Follow the wide track on the left, ignoring the narrow track on the right. At the brow of the hill cross a ladder stile over a drystone wall, straight ahead passing a house with large radio beacons. Cross a stile, turn left onto the road in front of Bowstones Farm, and within a few yards reach the fenced area of Bowstones.
- 8 Exit the Bowstones, turn left down the tarmacadam road. At the bottom of the hill as the road turns sharp right, cross a stile on the left. Head uphill following the track. Cross three stiles and continue uphill heading for a row of trees on the horizon.
- 9 At the top of the hill cross a high stone stile into Lyme Park. Walk downhill, with a view of Lyme Hall ahead, passing a disused quarry. Beyond the quarry look right for a view of the Cage. At the bottom of the hill cross a ladder stile, (Hampers Wood is on your left), walk down a stony path, ignoring a track to the left, and through a wooden gate.

- 11 Through a kissing gate, (exiting the park), then downhill passing Haresteads Farm on the left. Continue, now slightly uphill, passing woods on the left. Through a kissing gate, follow the track over the Macclesfield canal past Mount Vernon Wharf. Before returning to Nelson Pit take a moment to walk onto the canalside, turn left and up a few yards onto the bridge overlooking the boat yard.

i Canal boats have been built at Mount Vernon Wharf since the end of the Second World War. Metal shells are delivered by road to the wharf where each vessel is custom built. Boats fitted out at the yard are painted with traditional designs such as roses, castles, hearts and diamonds. The spade, a bad luck symbol in boating is never used. The name of a vessel is painted using either a shadowed Clarendon or Century Schoolbook typeface.

The Anson Museum

Located a short distance from the Visitor Centre down Anson Road towards Poynton. The Museum was built on the site of Anson Pit which closed in 1926. The land and many of the exhibits were donated by the late Les Cawley. The Museum houses probably the largest display of Internal Combustion Engines in Europe. It has a predominantly working display of early engines with particular emphasis on oil and gas machines made in Manchester. There is an admission charge.

Lyme Park Hall

Owned and managed by the National Trust, Lyme was transformed by the Venetian architect Leoni into an Italianate palace. Some of the Elizabethan interiors survive. The estate covers 1,400 acres of moorland, woodland and parkland. Lyme appeared in the BBC's Pride & Prejudice and Granada's production of The Forsyte Saga.
